

Honolua Area (Circa 1940)

Notes:

1. The four Honolua area villages and the Upper Mahinahina village were Baldwin Packers villages.
2. The Honolua Area had the largest number of Hawaiian families living in West Maui probably because from ancient times this area of West Maui had abundant water and arable land. Hawaiians also preferred working on a ranch rather than on a hot sugar cane field. Possibly too that their ancestors may not have acquired land under the Kuleana Act or having acquired their share of land later sold it.
3. Information on the Napili Beach area was provided by Frances Kalua, a former resident of that area. Her help in making this map possible is gratefully acknowledged.
